

After Daniel Pearl, The Wall Street Journal South Asia Bureau Chief, was kidnapped and murdered in Pakistan by terrorists in 2002, his family and friends came together to work toward a more humane world.

A nonprofit organization was formed in Danny's name to promote mutual respect and understanding among diverse cultures, diminish ethnic and religious hatred, encourage responsible and creative journalism, and unite people through the universal language of music. An unconventional optimist with a passion to broaden our vision of the world, Daniel Pearl earned respect around the world as a fair and highly principled journalist and as a bridge-builder who traveled with his violin and mandolin, using words and music to bring people together.

Danny's story has touched thousands who never knew him. The circumstances of his death rallied people against the tyranny of hatred, while the principles by which he lived continue to unite us around our common humanity. By promoting tolerance, dialogue, and the highest standards of the free press, the Daniel Pearl Foundation is working internationally through education and communication to empower voices of moderation to confront the hatred that took Danny's life.

JOURNALISM

DANIEL PEARL JOURNALIST and EDITOR FELLOWSHIPS brings journalists from South Asia and the Middle East to U.S. newsrooms to experience the dynamics of a free press environment first hand.

Mid-level journalists from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Egypt, Nepal, Pakistan, Turkey, Malaysia, and Yemen have spent six months at publications including: The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, Los Angeles Times, San Francisco Chronicle, The Huffington Post, Houston Chronicle, ProPublica, The Berkshire Eagle, and North Adams Transcript. The journalism program is administered in partnership with Alfred Friendly Press Partners.

All Daniel Pearl Fellows also spend a week at The Jewish Journal of Greater Los Angeles, where they work closely with Jewish colleagues, often for the first time in their careers. The Fellows also participate in a panel discussion open to the public about their experiences in the U.S., how America is perceived from abroad, and how their Fellowships have influenced their own journalistic ideals and practices.

After working in American newsrooms, the Daniel Pearl Fellows return to their home countries inspired and motivated to make an impact through their work. Read more about their stories at:

Daniel Pearl WORLD MUSIC DAYS

The annual Daniel Pearl World Music Days is a global network of concerts held throughout October, centered around Danny's October 10th birthday, in the theme of "Harmony for Humanity." Since its inception in 2002, World Music Days has brought together musicians of every genre who have dedicated more than 11,900 concerts in 132 countries to the ideals for which Danny stood and which continue to inspire new generations.

World Music Days eStage, an online radio station, also features a year-round gallery of photos, videos, original compositions, and poetry inspired by Danny's legacy.

The World Music Days Honorary Committee includes internationally renowned artists: Salman Ahmad, Theodore Bikel, Yefim Bronfman, Ida Haendel, Herbie Hancock, Sir Elton John, Dave Koz, Alison Krauss, Yo-Yo Ma, Zubin Mehta, Mark O'Connor, Matisyahu, Itzhak Perlman, Steve Reich, Mohammad Reza Shajarian, Barbra Streisand and John Williams.

Participation in World Music Days is simple and entails no financial obligation. For more information or to register a performance, create an artist page, or post original compositions, lyrics and video clips, please visit:
